LPPD continues its commitment to on-going professional development

Lieutenant John Krueger recently completed Sam Houston State's CPM program

In an effort to promote continued learning and development among its employees, LPPD strives to seek out opportunities to improve in the complimentary areas of production and leadership. As a result of the agency's most recent effort, on June 11th, LPPD witnessed one of its supervisors complete the Certified Public Manager (CPM) program, facilitated by Sam Houston State University. Receiving his individual certification, and new official professional designation, was La Porte Police Lieutenant John Krueger.

The CPM program is a 14 month long, nationally accredited, comprehensive management and leadership training program, hosted by the Hobby School of Public Affairs. The Sam Houston State Certified Public Manager (CPM) Program is an affiliate of the CPM Program offered through the William P. Hobby Center for Public Service at Texas State University and is accredited by the National Certified Public Manager Consortium. Graduates are entitled to use the official designation of Certified Public Manager (CPM), a professional credential and designation which exemplifies recognized standards for excellence in public management and leadership.

The Hobby School of Public Affairs' CPM Program is a challenging program designed to help today's manager become tomorrow's leader through innovative curriculum, problem-solving, and networking opportunities.

Krueger now joins a large national pool of managers who are dedicated to public service, and the agency is excited to see what new ideas for community improvement he will add to current operations.
